

Presenter: Princeton

Topic: Conditional probability

• Presenter was prepared	Yes	Somewhat	No
• Learning objectives were clear	Yes	Somewhat	No
• Presenter knew the material well	Yes	Somewhat	No
• Presenter engaged the audience	Yes	Somewhat	No
• Presenter handled questions effectively	Yes	Somewhat	No

What did you like best about this presentation?

- none

- clearly defining terms (though need more structure for students)
- check to see if colors are right tips are useful

What are the presenter's strengths?

- audio level

14

What suggestions do you have to improve the presenter's teaching?

- example could easily go on slides
↳ students will spend time writing then paying attention
- why make up #s? Use real data
- terms s/b written down
- writing too small
- "obviously"

What did you like best about this presentation?

Limitation of the data — "Don't use this to convince people to get a flu shot."

What are the presenter's strengths?

Starting with a down-to-earth example that everyone is familiar with

What suggestions do you have to improve the presenter's teaching?

Better handwriting on the whiteboard

What did you like best about this presentation?

The white board ~~on~~ and good use of it.

What are the presenter's strengths?

Pace and doing everything on the white board make it easy to follow.

What suggestions do you have to improve the presenter's teaching?

~~He~~ Define A and B ~~as~~ or not use those symbols on the whiteboard.

Then, you introduced B_1 & B_2 where $B = B_1$. Might be clearer to have more

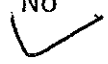

Draw a Venn diagram! :D to answer Mine's question.

What did you like best about this presentation?

The motivating example.

What are the presenter's strengths?

Explain with a good pace

What suggestions do you have to improve the presenter's teaching?

Better organize "Marginal, Joint, Conditional Probability" on the whiteboard.

What did you like best about this presentation?

Great ad-hoc example for flu-shots. Excellent introduction to the concept of joint probability

What are the presenter's strengths?

Very clear and conversational presentation style. I feel like all students would have gotten this concept

What suggestions do you have to improve the presenter's teaching?

Great job!
